This session looks at the role of dreams in different cultures and the myriad parallels formed with music. Music from virtually any time period could work, but the most striking parallels occur in the 20th century, when structures loosen, colors come into their own, and stream of consciousness prevails. Soon one begins to see a tie-in with mysticism and beliefs in a collective unconscious. When harmonies float, so do thoughts, and the enormity of an inexplicable universe is conveyed in the music by composers who believed in unseen forces, be they found in theosophy, astrology, or simply the occult. This presentation will explore music from different nations, cultures, and religious persuasions, as well as tie-ins with literature and visual art.
