Battling Burnout in Leadership

Rebecca Grooms Johnson, PhD, NCTM

"A burnout is someone in a state of fatigue or frustration brought about by devotion to a cause, way of life, or relationship that failed to produce the expected reward."

-Dr. Herbert Freudenberger

SYMPTOMS OF BURNOUT

- 1. Do you tire more easily, feel fatigued rather than energetic?
- 2. Are you working harder and harder and accomplishing less and less?
- 3. Are you increasingly disenchanted, bored, and cynical?
- 4. Are you often invaded by a sadness you can't explain?
- 5. Do you forget appointments and deadlines?
- 6. Are you increasingly irritable? More short tempered? More disappointed in people around you?
- 7. Are you too busy to do even routine things like make phone calls or send out notes and cards?
- 8. Are you suffering from physical complaints, such as aches, headaches, lingering colds?
- 9. Is joy elusive?
- 10. Are you able to laugh at a joke about yourself?
- 11. Do you feel a detachment from your surroundings?
- 12. Do you feel unappreciated?

Leadership situations that are stressful, boring, trivial, meaningless, unsuccessful, unappreciated, and unrewarding:

How did the Immediate-Past President help me transition into the position? How will I help the President-elect transition into the position with realistic expectations and goals?

Things that make me feel helpless.

Seven Paths to Successful Leadership

Preventing Job Burnout: Transforming Work Pressures Into Productivity, by Beverly Potter

- Managing Self. The way you manage yourself has a direct impact on your motivation and satisfaction. Good self managers enjoy working because they get more done and give themselves more credit.
- Managing Stress. Stress is the fever of burnout. When a person is sick, reducing the fever will make them more comfortable, but it will not heal the sickness.
- Building Social Support. Social support acts as a buffer against stress and burnout. You can tolerate more stress when you have caring and supportive relationships.
- Building Skills. Each skill enlarges your horizons and personal power. Without the necessary skills to perform, it is difficult to win. Be sure that you are an effective time manager.
- Tailoring the Job. Often jobs are shaped more by the last person doing it than by the actual demands of the position
- Thinking Powerfully. YOU FEEL WHAT YOU THINK
- Developing a Detached Concern. There is a delicate balance between involvement and nonattachment.
  - o Be yielding and/or flexible
  - Shift your viewpoint if necessary
  - o Laugh a lot
